GALA WEEK AT KESWICK

The Virginia circuit of horse shows was ushered in yesterday, with the 9th annual exhibit of the Keswick Hunt Club, which was held on the grounds opposite the clubhouse at Keswick.

There were more events than ever this year, and the horses exhibited far exceeded former entries in class and quality. The Keswick neighborhood, always gay, is gayier than ever this week. Nearly every house has a house party for the show. Mr. and Mrs. Morris are entertaining Miss Ethel Boyd Bowers of New York; Miss Katherine Elkins of Washington, and Miss Eleanor Sears of Boston, the polo player and tennis expert. All of these ladies will ride and drive in the show.

NOT HIS BROTHER'S BODY.

Suspecting that the body of an unidentified white man found in shoal water at the Dyke, near this city, about ten days ago, might be that of his brother, William Mankin, who is said to have been missing since April 3, George Mankin, a druggist, of Falls Church, had the grave opened Tuesday, after inspecting a sample of the cloth cut from the dead man's coat and retained by the undertaker. After viewing the body Mr. Mankin stated that he was convinced that it was not that of his brother.

COOL SPELL TO CONTINUE.

Weather Man Says Present Rainy Spell Has Already Broken
All Records.

According to the records of the Weather Bureau, the present cool, rainy weather has already exceeded in duration any spell of its kind in corresponding months for several years. The minimum temperature for this month has lingered around and below 50 degree.

There was rain last night with a chilly temperature, rendering fires necessary for comfort.

Most of the days this month have been wholly or partially cloudy and rainy. For for the last six years there has been but one clear day on May 15, which was in 1909, with a minimum temperature of 64 degrees.
The lowest temperature on May 15 since 1873 was 42 degrees in 1895.
In 1878 the mercury fell as low as 43 degrees.

According to the weather man last night the indications were for continued cool weather, with showers today.
Several cool waves with showers are seasonable for May, but the present spell has already broken the record, with every indication that it will continue.

REPAIRS AT MOUNT VERNON

heard yesterday by the Mount Vernon regents at their meeting in the

The committee on Pohick Creek Church reported that the restoration of the interior of that church was practically complete.

The regents will be in session until Saturday afternoon. Eighty members of the Red Cross Society visited

ALVA AERIE'S NEW HOME

Well Known Hostelry on Royal Street, Near King, Acquired by Order.

As was stated in the Gazette yesterday, Alva Aerie, Fraternal Order of Eagles, have purchased from Mrs.
Virginia Stewart, the building now used by Carl Fleischmann, and the order will in the future make their home there.

The sale was made to the trustees of that order by J. D. Normoyle, real estate dealer, for Mrs. Virginia Stewart, of Washington, and a deed for the same was placed on record yesterday afternoon in the office of the clerk of the Corporation Court.

The Eagles will, it is understood, eventually make this place their home, although it may be some time to come as yet. Mr. Fleischmann will continue to operate the hotel, he having a lease on the property.

The Eagles will eventually remodel that structure and convert it into a home. This organization now uses a rented hall for its lodge meetings, and it is said to be the policy of all Aeries throughout the country to own their own homes.

The building is on a historical landmark. Many years ago the late James Green conducted the cabinet-making business in a building on the spot which was almost obliterated when the present structure was erected.
It was here that the greatest fire ever witnessed in Alexandria started over three-quarters of a century ago and cut a swath through the city to the river. A cold northwesterly gale was prevailing at the time, and the hand engines and bucket brigades were powerless. The mahogany coffin inside the sarcophagus which at present contains the remains of George Washington was made at this place.
For years previous to the war Smith Brothers published the Virginia Sentinel in the building then standing on this spot.

Upon the outbreak of the conflict the Smiths went south and their building and printing office was used by Boyle, Dowell & McKenney in the publication of a paper known as the Daily Virginia Chronicle. In 1862 the late David Turner occupied the building and published the Alexandria News.
This was succeeded by the Virginia State Journal, and later by a semi-weekly paper called The Commonwealth. It was also the barracks of Illinois cavalymen at one time during the War. It was later used as a job printing office by Messrs. J. M. Hill and George E. Markell.

About a quarter of a century ago Mrs. Stewart, who had purchased the property, erected the present handsome structure and it was for a time used by her as a boarding house. It was subsequently leased by Mr.
Fleischmann for hotel purposes.
